

Fire Safety & Evacuation Training

Confidence when it matters most.

A fire risk assessment and a well-maintained building only go so far — when an alarm sounds, it's your staff who need to know what to do and do it without hesitating. Training turns a written fire strategy into something your team can actually carry out.

AJR Facilities Management delivers fire safety and evacuation training for staff teams, helping your organisation respond confidently in an emergency. We tailor every session to your premises and your people, so training reflects your actual building, your actual alarm, and your actual escape routes — not a generic slideshow.

Our Training Courses

- General fire safety awareness — the basics every member of staff needs: how fires start, how they spread, and how to prevent them
- Fire extinguisher training — hands-on practice identifying extinguisher types and using them safely and correctly
- Fire marshal / fire warden training — the extra responsibilities of a nominated marshal, including sweeps, headcounts and liaising with the fire service
- What to do in an emergency — recognising an alarm, raising the alert, and the immediate actions to take
- Evacuation training — practical, building-specific guidance on escape routes, assembly points and assisting others

Why It Matters

Under the Fire Safety (Scotland) Regulations 2006, staff must be given adequate fire safety training — but beyond compliance, an untrained team is far more likely to freeze, delay, or make the wrong call in the first critical minutes of an emergency. Confident, practised staff are what actually get everyone out safely.

Our Process

1. Get in touch — tell us about your team, premises and which courses you need
2. We schedule training at your premises, at a time that suits your operation
3. Your staff complete hands-on, building-specific training
4. We recommend a refresher schedule to keep your team's knowledge current
